Learning Highlights from this Week

Dear Parents,

This has been a great week to really begin some of our routines and start learning new things. I've been very pleased with how this group works together. Some need to get used to doing their homework each night and bringing books back to school. In Christ, Mrs. Rickman

Christian Studies: We're starting to look at God's Word, become familiar with our Bibles and using a Concordance.

Math: Students have been learning about factors, divisibility tricks, composite and prime numbers. Multiplication facts are being reviewed and need practiced.

Reading: In Reading Workshop students are learning how to choose a fit book and start thinking about strategies they use while reading. I am also beginning reading assessments.

Writing: In learning about the writing process, students have started writing stories or poems from original ideas. Word study has included spelling and grammar practice.

STAR OF THE WEEK

Our first Star of the Week is Brandon Noffsinger.

Brandon is a member of the Boy Scouts of America, a big brother to Kaitlyn in our Multi-age class, and an all around great classmate. He brought in his special State Coin Collection, and some great family pictures. We're blessed to have Brandon in our class.

Next Weeks Reminders

FUNDRAISER

Thank you for your participation so far. This fundraiser helps provide money for so many things we enjoy, like our OMSI trip. Friday is the last day to turn in sale forms. If you need more, they can be found in the information center in the lobby.

TEAM

The students of 5th grade and I have been developing our goals for the year and our understanding of how to work together as a team. We're blessed to have God as our leader and great parents in support! Colossians 3:12-14 is our Team Theme.
