

Seventh Grade Salutations

News of the Week and Upcoming Events

Blessings Seventh Grade Families! I pray you all had a wonderful Thanksgiving. Now that we are back at school Christmas is very much a part of our thoughts. This week we talked about Christmas traditions. One tradition we all enjoy is decorating, and on Tuesday, the class poured out their creativity and turned the classroom into Christmas! To carry on the theme of traditions, this weekend they need to find a family story from their past or present family history to share with the class and then with the school during the Christmas Program. Regarding the Christmas Program, we began practicing our role in it this week. The program is next Friday, December 11. The seventh grade students need to be in the classroom by 6:45pm to prepare for the 7:00pm performance. As of right now, everybody in the class has a part. If you are unable to make it next Friday, please let me know by Monday so I can shuffle speaking parts if needed. Everyone needs to come dressed in nice clothing that evening: slacks and collared shirts for the boys and dresses or skirts/slacks and nice shirts for the girls. I hope everyone can come as it is a wonderful way for us to celebrate the birth of Christ together. Our class Christmas party will be Friday, December 18. One of the activities that day will be exchanging Secret Santa Gifts. Names have already been picked and lists

WRITING
This Christmas Season,
the class will be reading
A CHRISTMAS CAROL.
For the next two weeks, the story will be read and discussed in class with a worksheet of questions to follow up the discussion. There will be one worksheet each day and will most likely need to be finished at home.

This book provides a lot of wonderful discussion about forgiveness, moldable hearts, and second chances. Feel free to read along with us to enjoy Dickens' Christmas message.
