

Seventh Grade Salutations

News of the Week and Upcoming Events

Blessings Seventh Grade Families!

The seventh grade class has been busy this week creating their outline for their research paper. They all have been working hard and overcoming any obstacles they have encountered along the way. I have been very proud of them. They also started working on the Five Themes of Geography Project. Everyone is describing their city using the five themes. In two weeks they will be presenting their description to the class in the form of a pamphlet.

The next quarter ends next week. I look forward to visiting with you each during parent teacher conferences. A confirmation slip was sent home today.

To celebrate the beginning of a new quarter, we as a class would like to go to Starbucks Monday, November 2. We will meet at school and drive to Starbucks at 8:20am and stay until 9:40am. A permission slip was sent home today. We need about four parents willing to help transport us to and from school. If you can, just let me know on the permission form. Thank you!

I hope and pray your weekend is a restful and enjoyable one.

God bless,
Renee Reitmeier

The next way relates to this year's Harvest Festival. The 7th grade is in charge of hosting the Bounce House Booth. We need six families willing to monitor the bounce house for a 1/2 hour at a time. Homework Update

GEOGRAPHY
The Five Themes of Geography Project was started this week. Each person is creating a pamphlet describing their home city using the five themes of geography. Some work, such as gathering pictures of the city they live in will need to be done at home. The pictures relate to the five themes and can be clip-art, internet, or actual. There are six total needed.
